

Editing and Publishing (Interdisciplinary Minor)

The editing & publishing minor, housed in the English department, is an interdisciplinary minor designed for students interested in focused engagement and practical experience with text production, editorial discernment, and multi-platform design and publishing. Students study the aesthetics and ethics of editorial work and multiple methods of textual production, including bookmaking, web-based journals, e-publications, and emerging forms of design. Courses for the minor have traditional humanities strengths in that they ask students to analyze media productions and to respond intelligently to their content as well as their structure. The minor also has practical, experiential components, in that it helps students begin to explore the publishing and editing fields in professional settings. The completion of the minor results in portfolio- and résumé-worthy projects and experience, as well as significant professional internships. With a consistent focus on team-based projects and public engagement grounded in historical, aesthetic and ethical frameworks, the EP minor provides students a unique undergraduate opportunity to contextualize their academic experience and explore how humanities disciplines are correspondent, relevant and significant to career pursuits.
